

Adults-Only Summer Fun

When was the last time you laughed so hard your cheeks hurt? What do you do that brings feelings of joy and excitement into your life? No matter what your relationship status might be, taking time to relax and have fun is integral to your overall health and happiness. For those in a relationship, time spent together having fun is important in helping to maintain feelings of closeness and connection. With all of the day to day responsibilities and stressors that are a regular part of life, having fun together is a necessary ingredient for a healthy, happy lifestyle. In my experience, couples who aren't having fun together outside of the bedroom are far less likely to be having fun together inside the bedroom.

Frequently, clients come to me for help in their relationships and their reason for seeking treatment is because they no longer feel close, connected, or "happy" with their partner. When I explore what they typically do for fun together, many identify things like: watching TV, reading a book, going out for meals, etc. Those are nice hobbies, and perhaps they are part of one's much needed daily self-care regimen; however, I question whether or not these things truly bring them a feeling of fun or excitement.

Lucky for us, the summer is the perfect time to embark on a new adventure and find new ways to add more fun and excitement to our lives. Whatever your interests may be; whether you're partnered or single—there is something for everyone. Below is a sampling of some of the Camps, Resorts, Beaches, and Getaways that I found while looking for creative ideas for some Adults-only fun. For those looking for clothing optional adult fun, I've included those as well. Send the kids to stay with family for a few days, hire a pet sitter, and pack your bags! It's time for the adults to have some fun.
